The assembly device shall operate to maintain the pressure in the zone between the two check valves, less than the pressure on the water supply side of the assembly device. At cessation of normal flow, the pressure between the check valves shall be less than the supply pressure. In case of leakage of either check valve, the differential relief valve shall operate to maintain this reduced pressure by discharging to the atmosphere. When the inlet pressure is two pounds per square inch or less, the relief valve shall open to the atmosphere, thereby providing an air gap in the assembly device. Only Washington State Department of Health approved assemblies shall be accepted.

- (a) Premises having an auxiliary water supply;
 - (b) Premises having internal cross-connections that are not correctable; or intricate plumbing arrangements which make it impracticable to ascertain whether or not cross-connections exist;
 - (c) Premises where entry is restricted so that inspections for cross-connections cannot be made with sufficient frequency or at sufficiently short notice to assure that cross-connections do not exist;
 - (d) Premises having a repeated history of cross-connections being established or reestablished;
 - (e) Premises on which any substance is handled under pressure so as to permit entry into the public water supply, or where a cross-connection could reasonably be expected to occur. This shall include the handling of process waters and cooling waters;

(b) Backflow prevention assemblies devices shall be inspected and tested annually by the public services works department at the time of installation, annually after installation, after an assembly is repaired, reinstalled or relocated, or more often where successive inspections indicate repeated failure. ~~The Assemblies devices~~ shall be repaired, overhauled or replaced whenever they are found to be defective. Inspections, tests and repairs and records thereof shall be done under the county's supervision at the expense of the consumer.

(c) In lieu of the public services department inspecting and testing the consumer's backflow assembly, the consumer may elect to contract the inspecting and testing with a backflow assembly tester certified by the Washington State Department of Health at the consumer's expense.
